Joseph Yang is counsel in the Intellectual Property and Technology Group, and co-founded the IP strategy and transactions practice group in Skadden's Palo Alto office.

Mr. Yang advises clients on all aspects of intellectual property, with a focus on technology joint ventures, technology development, IP licensing, outsourcing and related transactions. He also frequently works on the IP aspects of major corporate transactions (such as mergers and acquisitions), and counsels clients on IP strategy (i.e., patent exploitation, portfolio management, infringement and validity analyses, etc.).

He has recently represented clients in the software, telecommunications, computer security, semiconductor, satellite, financial, medical device, healthcare, and pharmaceutical industries in matters such as:

- research and development, manufacturing, supply and marketing alliances and joint ventures;
- technology transfer agreements;
- patent licensing and cross-licensing;
- spin-off of a business division;
- cross-border joint development deals;
- outsourcing IT operations;
- developing policy and practices statements for digital certification authorities;
- industry standards and consortium agreements;
- copyright reverse engineering;
- IP asset auctions in bankruptcy;
- designing around competitors’ patents;
- all manner of Internet-related agreements; and
- arbitration and settlement of actual or threatened litigation.

Mr. Yang frequently lectures on technology transactions and the use of intellectual property as business assets. He co-chairs the annual “Advanced Licensing (continued on reverse side)
Biography

Joseph Yang

Agreements” course for the Practising Law Institute in San Francisco and New York. He has also taught a course entitled “Patent Law and Policy” at U.C. Berkeley (Boalt Hall) School of Law as an adjunct professor.

Before becoming an attorney, Mr. Yang was a research engineer in the aerospace/defense (TRW Corporation) and energy (Shell Research) industries.

“The Top Ten Mistakes when Structuring Technology License or Alliance Agreements,” Licensing Executives Society, Annual Meeting, September 2002

Click here for a more detailed list of authorships.

visit Skadden.com
Biography

Joseph Yang - Selected Recent and Upcoming Authorships

Program Co-Chair, Advanced Licensing Agreements 2003, Practising Law Institute, March 2003.

visit Skadden.com